J. Polk Brooks Has Shown Much Progress Since 1927

PROGRESS: In 1927 Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey fought for the championship, the Charlie Birger gang activity was at its height. Timmo was being graduated from high school and J. Polk Brooks of Paducah, Ky., a lad not quite 20 years old, started hauling people from Paducah to Michigan.

He had just an ordinary automobile and he went from door to door to pick up his passengers. And when he got to Michigan he deposited them right where they wanted to get out. He had no regular schedule, just took off when he got a load. Young Brooks did all the driving himself.

Today J. Polk Brooks, 47 years old, is sole owner of a bus line that is something proud to behold. You should have seen one of the two new buses he has bought being shown to the public on the Harrisburg court house square.

The bus, shown by his son, Jack Brooks, who now is one of his drivers, is as modern as a bus can be. Powered by a 200 H. P. GMC diesel, the bus is completely air conditioned. I sat down for a while in one of those super-comfortable seats and it was hard to get up. Solid comfort.

J. Polk Brooks has come a long way in the past 27 years. He did all the driving himself for the first eight or ten years. After driving an automobile for a while he took on those 12-passenger four-seated autos and drove them until 1937, when he bought his first bus, an 18-passenger job. From there he ran on schedules and has improved both his buses and service until he now has two buses which are as fine as are in the nation.

Besides the new ones he has five others — four 37-passenger buses and a 28-passenger job.

The two new ones will be used on the daily express run between Paducah and Michigan with four stops in this county — at Stonefort, Carrier Mills, Harrisburg and Eldorado. On this express run you can't buy a ticket for just part of the way — you must go all the way from Paducah or southern Illinois into Michigan, where there are stops at Jackson, Plymouth, Ann Arbor and Detroit.

Because of the traffic between southern Illinois and Michigan during the summer months, there is supplementary service being offered, with a northbound bus passing through three nights a week and one from the north arriving three mornings each week. The other buses are used for this extra service and for chartered trips.

The Brooks Bus Line stops at the Union depot uptown in Harrisburg. Jack Brooks said these most modern air-conditioned buses are expected to start their runs about Wednesday of next week.

WE GROW 'EM ODDER DEPT: Timmo got a nice donation of Butter and Eggs from Mrs. Grover Wise of Harrisburg Route 4 yesterday. The Butter and Eggs was in the form of an unusual bouquet of hardy snapdragons called Butter and Eggs because of the two-tone yellow color of the flowers.

What was unusual about this beautiful bouquet is an odd stem growing out of the normal ones. It is a flat stem about an inch wide and about as long as an iris leaf. At its top is a green coxcomb with yellow flowers growing just below this part. And the flat stem is covered with what looks like blades of grass.

It's definitely odder.

Rites at Cave-in-Rock

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Devers, 83, Cave-in-Rock, who died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Virgie Boyd, was today at 2 p. m. at the Cave-in-Rock Baptist church. Rev. James Doon, pastor, officiated and burial was in Cave Hill cemetery.

The Rose funeral home was in charge.

Trucks Collide

Trucks driven by J. P. Collins and Burdette Mosby, both living near Eldorado, collided yesterday morning on Route 45 at the Little Egypt hotel crossing. State Policeman Guthrie Alexander reported. Both vehicles were damaged but there were no injuries. Mosby was traveling north on Route 45 and Collins was crossing the road when the crash occurred.

Eisenhower Urges Action On Legislation

GOP Leaders Predict Success for Most of Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican leaders today predicted success for most of the legislation President Eisenhower called for Thursday night to block "rash aggression" and "to build a better and stronger America."

Democrats generally declared they will back his Social Security, health and unemployment compensation proposals. But they hoisted storm warnings at his plea for his big tax reform bill and flexible farm support program.

In his first major radio-television address in nearly two months, Mr. Eisenhower urged Congress to act quickly on the "badly needed" measures to put America on a "broad, straight legislative highway" to "security, prosperity and happiness."

He said Americans are living in "an age of ceaseless trouble and danger" when the future is "shadowed by mushroom clouds and menaced by godless men addicted to force and violence and the continuance of anarchy among nations."

"Let us therefore not rest until these laws are passed," he said. "Let us have less political fission and more political fusion. Let us have in this session of Congress approval of a program essential to a stronger America."

The President spoke before the Citizens For Eisenhower Congressional Committee and the admitted partisan audience interrupted 32 times to cheer him wildly. Mr. Eisenhower grinned his pleasure. Mrs. Eisenhower was moved almost to tears when the orchestra played "Mamie What a Wonderful Name."

In one brief political note, Mr. Eisenhower announced his pleasure at the prospect that there will be "many more" men and women supporters in the next Congress and added: "It would seem redundant for me to say the more the better."

But for the most part the President steered clear of politics and appealed for bipartisan backing for his program which he said is designed to give "every willing American a practical opportunity to enjoy the health, a good job, a good education, a good home, a good country."

He patted Congress on the back for working hard "in spite of highly publicized distraction" — an obvious reference to the Army-McCarthy hearings. But he urged it to even greater activity.

Army Board Approves Saline River Project

The United Press reported this afternoon that the Army Board of Engineers has approved a $5,399,000 project for channel improvement works in the Saline River in Illinois.

Significance of this announcement was not immediately determined but it is believed that formation of a River Conservancy district must be approved by the voters and funds must be approved by Congress before any definite action can be taken.

This is the project that the Saline River Valley association has been seeking for a number of years. C. H. James of near Harrisburg made many trips to Washington seeking this project which would improve lands in the area and be of great benefit.

The project had been passed by Army engineers at Louisville and Cincinnati and sent to Washington but reports here were that a municipal body would have to be set up to sponsor the project, guaranteeing right-of-way and continuing the maintenance once the project was done. This would be a River Conservancy district.

The basin on two occasions has voted on the establishment of such a body but was beaten on both occasions.

Receives Appointment To West Point

Gerald W. Noga, 18, son of Mrs. J. C. Noga, the former Lurline Twitchell of Harrisburg, who is a sophomore at Purdue university, recently won an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. He will report to the academy on July 6.

Gerald was in the National Honor society in the Bowen high school at Chicago and has been a distinguished student during his first year at Purdue. He was the principal candidate of Rep. W. E. McVey, Fourth District, Illinois. He is the grandson of George Twitchell of Harrisburg.

WELCH "SHAKEN UP" — Special Army Counselor Joseph N. Welch, visibly shaken after his bitter clash with Sen. Joseph McCarthy at the Army-McCarthy feud in Washington, holds his head in his hands after the clash. The clash came when the Senator charged a "young man named Fisher" of Welch's law firm was a member of an organization "named as the legal bulwark of the Communist Party." (NEA Telephoto)

Stratton Says Nixon Will Aid GOP in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. William Stratton announced that Vice President Nixon will campaign for Illinois Republicans this year, but said he didn't know about Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Stratton said Thursday night Nixon would come to Illinois sometime after President Eisenhower's scheduled speech at the State Fair Aug. 19.

The governor said he hadn't given McCarthy much thought but "naturally, we want whoever can help us win."

When told the National Republican committee has ruled against using McCarthy in the campaign, he said, "Personally I don't pay much attention to what a senator from another state may do."

"I don't care what his name is or how much publicity he gets," he said. "We're a big state and we'll be on the spot and running on our immediate state record."

He was asked about a report that the President might cancel his State Fair address because of differences with Joseph T. Meek, the Illinois GOP senatorial candidate. Will Speak on State Matters

"I have every reason to believe he will be here," he said. "Illinois is a very important Republican state, a bulwark... there is no disagreement."

The governor's comments included:

Common School Aid: "We have to find a solution that will allow us to provide it with available revenue."

State Republican Convention: He will speak on state matters, leaving national politics up to U. S. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen and Congressman Leslie C. Arends.

State GOP Platform: "Particular" matters, specifically the Bricker amendment, are not proper matter for the platform; it should express "general principles like a constitution."

House Votes to Consider Trade Act Extension

Brought to Floor Under Rule Barring Changes

By United Press
So-called "protectionist" groups in the House suffered a sharp reversal today when the chamber voted to consider a one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act.

The high-tariff congressmen had hoped to saddle the measure with amendments but it was brought to the floor under a rule barring changes. The rule was approved by a House vote of 273 to 63.

President Eisenhower, who wanted a three-year extension with provisions granting him power to lower tariffs, has agreed to the one-year proposal. He hopes Congress in the meantime will give careful study to his foreign trade proposals.

Order Speed Up

The Senate is expected to approve the extension so there will be little interruption in the life of the present law which formally expires Saturday.

A big defense appropriation was the keynote in the Senate today. The Appropriations committee approved a 29-billion-dollar "new look" outlay, about five billion dollars less than voted for the current fiscal year.

The committee also ordered a speed-up in security investigations in the armed forces. This was prompted by the Army's handling of the case of Maj. Irving Peress, described by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy as a "Fifth Amendment Communist," and by the denial of commissions to three Annapolis Naval Academy graduates who are under security scrutiny.

Other congressional action:
Dairy: The House Agriculture committee took up a measure to give the Department of Agriculture authority to subsidize dairy farmers by making cash payments to butter and dairy processing plants. The committee is seeking ways to help dairy farmers without alienating housewives by pushing dairy prices up.

Reserve Commissions: Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-N.Y.) called on the armed services to take a stand on men with reserve commissions who openly defy President Eisenhower's secrecy orders. In a speech inserted in the Congressional Record, he did not mention any names. But Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) holds a reserve commission in the Marine Corps and has called on all federal employees to disregard the President's order and give him information on subversion.

FBI Leads Search for Kidnap of Young Wife, Freed for $75,000

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A special crew of FBI agents flown here from Washington led a search by air and land today for a kidnaper who abducted the young wife of a wealthy industrialist and collected $75,000 ransom for her release.

Mrs. Evelyn Ann Smith, 23, was released late Thursday after her husband risked his own life to follow a fantastic trail of kidnaper notes and make the payoff to the masked abductor in the foothills of the Superstition Mountains, 40 miles east of here.

Mrs. Smith, a pretty brunette and mother of two children, was kidnapped Wednesday as she left a beauty parlor here. Her abductor apparently had not harmed or molested her.

The young housewife told FBI agents she believed her abductor was suffering from cancer.

"He told me that he had cancer and expected to die soon," she said he told her. "He said the kidnapping was to provide him a last fling."

Believed From Chicago

She said she was held nearly 30 hours in the back of the car.

"He gave the impression he was from Chicago," she added. "The area where she was turned loose is a vast and treacherous region where more than 20 persons have died in a fruitless search for the fabulous Lost Dutchman gold mine. It is arid, rocky and filled with shafts of forgotten gold diggings."

Dies on Gallows Without Emotion For Killing Wife

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — G. Edward G. Grammer silently bowed head on the gallows of the ancient State Prison here early today and died by the noose for the "almost perfect" murder of his wife.

The sorrow face and sunken eyes of the 37-year-old New York businessman betrayed no emotion when his head was covered with a dark green hood and he plunged through the steel trap.

His body shook violently until guards moved forward and held it still. One of the red carpet slippers he was wearing fell to the floor. He sighed heavily for a minute and a half.

Then he was quiet. From the death house nearby two Negro inmates could be heard praying softly with Catholic priests. Exactly four minutes after the trap was sprung, there was another gasp.

Family Claims Body
Four times, Dr. Henry W. D. Holljes stepped up to examine the body. Finally he pronounced Grammer dead.

Grammer killed his wife, Dorothy Mae, in a faked auto accident in August, 1952, for the love of a United Nations secretary. Grammer, a stocky, balding man and the father of three children, spent his last day simply and stoically. He took Communion, visited his mother, two brothers and sister and prayed with the prison's Methodist chaplain, the Rev. Benjamin Blaubaugh.

Members of Grammer's family, none of whom witnessed the execution, claimed the body. Burial arrangements were not disclosed.

Police first called Mrs. Grammer's death an accident after the family car plunged down a steep hill on the outskirts of Baltimore Aug. 19, 1952, and crashed into a tree. Police reopened the case after a pebble was found lodged under the accelerator pedal.

Roadblocks were established and bloodhounds from the Florence State Prison followed a trail picked up from beside Mrs. Smith's abandoned car at the foot of the mountains.

At least five airplanes, including four in the sheriff's air patrol, cruised over the area.

A parallel hunt was being conducted in metropolitan Phoenix, where a possible second kidnaper may be hiding. Mrs. Smith spoke of hearing two men talking while she was locked for five hours in the trunk of her own automobile.

Police noted the ransom note also spoke of "we," and one of the instruction notes—sent to the Smith home in a bouquet of red roses—hardly could have been dispatched by her captor while they were hidden in the desert.

Mrs. Smith disappeared when she left Reidell's beauty shop at about 1 p. m. Wednesday. In mid-afternoon, her husband received an anonymous call at his office.

"You can pick up your golf clubs at Ed's Place a quarter of a mile from Apache Junction," a man's voice said, adding, "You'll find a note."

Smith thought it was a prank, but when he returned home at 7:10 p. m. to find his wife missing, he notified police. He also recalled that his golf clubs were in his wife's car.

Sam Smith, Herbert's father, and Deputy Sheriff Paul Mullenix picked up the golf clubs and the ransom note. It asked for $75,000 for the return alive of Mrs. Smith.

"Knowing the penalty for kidnapping, we are gambling our lives," the note said. "If you want to gamble the life of your wife and children call in the police or mark the money."

"If any one else other than you picks up this note of instructions they will be blown to bits along with all hopes of you seeing your wife again. Do we make ourselves clear?"

Besides instructions for the preparation of the money—drawn from the First National Bank of Arizona in a pool made up by the Smith family and relatives—the note told Smith to go to the same Apache Junction restaurant garage where the golf clubs had been left and call his home at 2 p. m. for further instructions. He did. The instructions had been sent with the roses and carried in a car still being searched for.

A long series of such notes followed, leading him into the mountain area. Finally he came upon his wife's parked car and heard her cry to him.

She was sitting on a mountain ledge above him. He started to ward her, but another voice—a man's—stopped him.

On a higher ledge stood the masked kidnaper. He had a rifle in one hand, a revolver in the other, and wore binoculars around his neck. He fired a warning shot.

Smith dropped the valise containing the ransom money and all of the typewritten notes, as per instructions. He was then permitted to climb up and help his wife down the mountainside. The kidnaper picked up the ransom money.

He was going to walk the nearly 26 miles to Canyon Lake and then hitch-hike back to civilization. Smith drove the pay-off car home and abandoned his wife's auto where it was parked.

Asks Senate To Cancel Chairmanships

Senator Bases Charges on Contempt of Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senator Ralph E. Flanders today urged the Senate to strip Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Senate committee chairmanships if he does not quickly purge himself of what Flanders called "contempt" of the Senate.

The Vermont Republican based his contempt charge on McCarthy's refusal to appear before a Senate rules subcommittee which investigated his finances in the last Congress. He said contempt of that committee extended to the Senate itself.

Flanders offered a resolution proposing that McCarthy "be separated from his chairmanship of the Senate Committee on Government Operations and furthermore be prohibited from being chairman or vice chairman of any subcommittee thereof."

Flanders asked that his resolution "lie on the desk until sufficient time has been given for the senator to purge himself of contempt by answering specifically and in detail the charges in the numerous questions" which the Rules subcommittee raised about his income and taxes.

Flanders made the request of the Senate in a prepared speech. He obtained the floor early in the Senate session to deliver it, but finally was asked by Senate Republican Leader William K. Knowland (Calif.) to withhold actual delivery until senators completed some routine business. He actually began the speech at 1:03 p. m.

Shown a copy of Flanders' text, McCarthy grinned and commented: "I think they should get a man with a net and take him (Flanders) to some good quiet place."

Before today's speech, Flanders gave McCarthy dramatic notice that he would speak up again on the Senate floor. He interrupted the Army-McCarthy hearings, walked to the witness stand while McCarthy was being cross-examined and handed him a message notifying McCarthy that he would make the speech today.

McCarthy, reading Flanders' note aloud, immediately denounced the 73-year-old Vermont Republican for "sneers" against McCarthy.

He immediately challenged Flanders to testify under oath at the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Flanders, in a sensational Senate speech two weeks ago, had compared McCarthy to Adolf Hitler. With millions of television watchers looking on, the mustached New Englander quietly walked into the packed hearing room, approached McCarthy on the witness stand, and handed him an envelope.

McCarthy told Flanders he could not go to the Senate floor because he would be testifying on the Army-McCarthy row.

Acting Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) broke up the incident by declaring that the subcommittee "can't permit this kind of feeding."

Only Few Show Up for Civil Defense Meeting

Five persons showed up at a meeting called for last night at the city hall to organize a county-wide and city of Harrisburg Civilian Defense setups. Thus nothing was accomplished.

The meeting was called, to be held at the city hall, by Ray Altire, county director of Civil Defense, and those reporting were Charles Izagani, Perry Moore, Ray Johnson and a representative of The Daily Register.

Altire, who is seeking representatives of all groups in the county to take part in the organization, said more contact work would be done and another meeting called. Saline is one of the few counties without a set-up to take care of evacuees who would be dispatched into the area should target areas be bombed.

However, the Ground Observer Corps is functioning and will be on duty during a nationwide alert to be held June 14 and 15.

The organization which would be set up here to take care of evacuees would include the following departments: Medical, welfare (food, clothing, shelter), transportation, employment and communications.

McCarthy's Diversions Help Him Sidetrack Touchy Issues

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's demand that Sen. Stuart Symington step down from the special committee investigating the Cohn-Schine antics with the Army is merely the latest in a long line of headline-grabbing tactics.

The junior senator from Wisconsin has now tangled with every member of the committee except Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who wants the hearings ended.

One of the things Senator McCarthy does best is employ diversions to wreck the proceedings. Let a train of thought get started highballing, headed in a direction that is going to do the McCarthy cause no good and McCarthy is almost sure to switch it off on a side-track or sensationally flag it down. The result is that the special committee under Sen. Karl Mundt now has before it a dozen or more major unsubstantiated charges, threats not carried out and general confusion. It has swelled the committee record and strung it out almost endlessly.

THE FIRST MOVE of this kind came on the day the hearings opened when Senator McCarthy charged that the whole case was a plot cooked up under the direction of

Oldest Statue

Although the equestrian statue of Gen. Andrew Jackson in Washington, D. C., is the oldest in the United States, it was not the first such statue. A gilded lead statue of King George III was dedicated at Fort George, N. Y., in 1770, but was torn down in 1776 by a mob of patriots. Later the statue was melted into bullets for the Revolutionary Army.

No wonder
Buick Sales are Soaring!

TAKE heart, good friend—you can buy a hit-of-the-year Buick if you can afford any new car.

And we proudly show our price here to prove it.

For this price is the delivered price—the local delivered price—of the new Buick SPECIAL 2-door, 6-passenger Sedan—and it's just a few dollars away from those of the so-called "low-price three"—lower, in fact, than even some models of those very same cars.

But look what this Buick price gets you!

It gets you the very look of tomorrow in styling modernity, even to the spectacular new panoramic windshield that seems to outdate everything before it.

It gets you Buick V8 power—highest in SPECIAL history—plus the economy of new Power-Head Pistons.

It gets you Buick room, Buick luxury, Buick size and structure and solidity—including of course, the famed Million Dollar Ride and a new precision in handling ease.

It gets you, too, solid and deep-down value.

For any way you look at it, you're money ahead with the car that's years-ahead now in looks and line and the lift of its power—and the car that's outselling every other car in America except two of the "low-price three."

Drop in today or the first thing tomorrow—just to try and to drive and to compare a new Buick. We'll let the car prove its points.

GOP Helped 20-Year Demo Rule, Stevenson Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson said today President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles would have to share the blame if past Democratic administrations constituted "20 years of treason."

The 1952 Democratic presidential candidates said "an awful lot of Republicans," including Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles, held key posts under the Democrats.

As long as the charge that "traitors" operated the government during the 20 years of Democratic rule is all-inclusive, Stevenson said, many prominent Republicans are among those now being criticized.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) has often used the phrase "20 years of treason" in describing the administrations of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman.

Stevenson said in a filmed interview with columnist Drew Pearson that there was genuine bipartisanship in the Army, Navy and other government departments during World War II.

The former Illinois governor noted that Navy Secretary Frank Knox, Secretary of the Army Henry L. Stimson and a number of other officials appointed by President Roosevelt were Republicans.

Asked about U. S. foreign policy at the present time, Stevenson said the principal problem facing Dulles "is perfectly apparent and that is the Republican Party has no unity in the subject of foreign affairs and we sometimes wonder who the secretary of state might be."

He said Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland and Vice President Richard M. Nixon are causing a "state of confusion" by their statements on foreign policy. "This is what I call foreign policy by the platoon system."

Budget Bureau to Decide on Private Power for A-Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Budget Bureau expects to make a decision within a week on the controversial proposal for public power companies to deliver power into the Tennessee Valley Authority system for use by the atomic energy plant at Paducah, Ky., Sen. Leverett Saltonstall said Thursday.

The Massachusetts Republican said that during hearings last month on the independent offices appropriation bill, the Atomic Energy Commission stated it was considering a proposal by the Middle South Utilities, Inc., and the Southern Co. to furnish the power.

Since the hearings, a proposal by "another group" has been received, Saltonstall said.

Saltonstall said he has been informed by K. D. Nichols, AEC general manager, that both proposals have been analyzed and forwarded to the Budget Bureau for a decision.

Claims McCarthy Testimony Contradictory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ray H. Jenkins strongly suggested today that a Dec. 17 memorandum written by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy directly contradicted McCarthy's testimony on why the Army proposed to "break" Maj. Gen. Kirke B. Lawton as commandant of Fort Monmouth, N. J.

McCarthy denied the implication during concluding cross-examination by Jenkins, special counsel for the Senate Permanent Investigating subcommittee.

He said the Army set up "phony claims" in an effort to get rid of Lawton. The real reason, he insisted, was Lawton's cooperation with the McCarthy investigators in their hunt for subversives at Fort Monmouth.

Jenkins reminded the senator that Thursday he testified Army Counselor John G. Adams told him last winter Lawton was to be removed because of critical remarks about certain universities.

The memo said the only reason Adams gave was that "Lawton embarrassed the military" by helping the subcommittee expose bad security at Fort Monmouth.

McCarthy said the memo contained his evaluation of Adams' reason and therefore was not contradictory.

Jenkins hammered at this point before breaking off his cross-examination, shortly before the conclusion of the morning session of the 32nd day of the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Reds Refuse to Budge from Plan for Rigged Elections; Korea Talks Near Failure

GENEVA (AP) — The Communist bloc refused to budge today from its plan to hold rigged elections in Korea, and one Western leader indicated it was time to break off the 19-nation conference on Korean unification.

Meanwhile, the Communist Viet Minh was reported by responsible sources to have demanded the surrender by France of all the rich and strategic Red River Delta, excepting the cities of Hanoi and Haiphong, in the "regroupment" of forces after a ceasefire.

Chinese Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En Lai opened the 14th session of the Korean parley with the most violent attack yet made on the United States.

The Peiping Communist leader wound up by daring the West to break off the talks.

Delusions and False Hope

C. A. Ronning, acting chief of the Canadian delegation, led off for the West by replying that there was no use "to delude ourselves with false hopes and lead the people of the world to believe that there is agreement when there is no agreement."

Barring some new time-consuming Communist proposal, Western officials believed that the session marked the beginning of the end of the Korean discussions.

Communist Chinese Premier Chou En Lai requested a resumption of Korean talks only to back up Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's proposal for separate commissions to study various phases of Korean problems.

The West already has rejected the proposal as simply a means for dragging out useless negotia-

South Korea May Walk Out Of Conference

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — President Syngman Rhee said today the "time has come" for South Korea to walk out of the Geneva conference.

Rhee told United Press that "every additional day" of attempting to solve the Korean problem at the conference table "is an additional feather in the cap of the Communists."

But he said, "The time has come for us to walk out, ending the Korean phase of the Geneva conference."

South Korea May Not Wait

In answer to written questions Rhee hinted that South Korea may not wait until the July 26 deadline he has set for a peaceful Korean settlement.

"The conditions under which we agreed to attend the Geneva conference do not prevent our leaving short of 90 days," he said.

The president announced before the conference started April 26 that he would allow the Republic of Korea delegation to negotiate at Geneva no longer than 90 days.

"A Losing Game"

"We are playing a losing game by talking with the Communists," Rhee said, "because while they are talking they are acting, too, although surreptitiously."

He charged that "each month has taken its toll of North Koreans and made the country (North Korea) more Chinese."

He predicted that the free world "at last, I hope not too late, sees through the Communist strategy and agrees with us words are useless," the president wrote.

Investigate Blast Fatal to Five Persons

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fire Chief Walter Kammann said today that the department was checking a report that a South Side chemical plant blast was caused by chemicals being processed for Army flame throwers.

Five persons were killed and 32 others injured in the explosion and fire at the Wilson-Keith & Co. Thursday.

Kammann said he assigned Fire Marshal Walter Bergman to work on the theory but added that so far the cause of the $223,000 blast was unknown.

Released on Bond

Raymond Williams, who has been held in the Saline county jail on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Elbert Sheffield, 20, was released on $5,000 bond last night. He had been arraigned Monday, following the Sunday shooting, and waived preliminary hearing to await the action of the grand jury.

Senators Hit Eisenhower Farm Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Milton R. Young (R-N.D.) said today the Republican Party "might as well write off" the Midwest in future presidential elections if the GOP formally adopts President Eisenhower's farm program.

Commenting on the President's speech last night in which he called for enactment of the administration's flexible price support program, Young said this would result in "legislating another depression."

He said lower farm price supports would lead to lower farm income and charged that the President's approach now is "entirely different than during the 1932 campaign."

Mr. Eisenhower noted that the House Agriculture Committee last week voted tentatively to continue the present farm program for another year. He said it did this "despite painfully evident weaknesses" in the law.

Hope Refuses Comment

Committee chairman Clifford R. Hope (R-Kan.), who is opposed to flexible supports, refused to comment on the President's statement. But Rep. Harold S. Love (R-S.D.) said Mr. Eisenhower "has been receiving some bad advice."

"His speech will have no effect whatsoever on the congressional vote on the farm program," Love said. "A vast majority of farmers want rigid, high supports."

He said the President was "emphatic for high supports" when he spoke at Brookings, S. D., during the 1952 campaign. "I don't agree with the President's position now at all."

Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-N.C.), ranking Democratic committee

Charles F. Adams, 87, Descendant of Two Presidents, Dies

BOSTON (AP) — Charles Francis Adams, 87, descendant of two presidents of the United States, died at his home here today. He was secretary of navy from 1929 to 1933.

Banker, yachtsman and philanthropist, Adams was one of Boston's leading citizens for many years. He was a great-grandson of John Adams, second president, and a great-grandson of John Quincy Adams, sixth president.

Besides his widow, he leaves a son, Charles Francis Adams Jr., president of Raytheon Inc., and a

STREET ROD
by Henry Gregor Felsen

Copyright 1953 by Henry Gregor Felsen. Printed by arrangement with the publishers, Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service

THE STORY: Ricky Madison, 16, feels lost because his friends have "hot rods," while he has only his bicycle. He broaches the subject to his father, who says Ricky must save his money to go to college.

mine and I was going to keep it? Couldn't say anything. It's my money. They wouldn't kick me out either. They'd just have to accept it, that's all.

He was moving toward the bank, thumbs hooked in his belt, eyes narrowed against the sun.

He went up the three stone steps slowly, uncertainly, almost hoping something would happen to stop him.

Annie Myers, the assistant cashier, was eating her lunch at a table near the vault door. He stood at the teller's window, watching her. The bank was merely one big room, divided by a partition not more than five feet high.

Annie heard him and looked around. She was a small woman of about 60, with a pale face and bushy hair that had faded from red to light orange.

"Do you want something?" There was an unspoken note of annoyance in Annie's voice. She didn't like to be disturbed during her lunch.

"I want to draw out some money," Ricky said, still staring at Annie.

"Does your father know you're taking this money out?"

Annie's sharp voice, her speaking as to a small child, angered him.

"I'm not asking for my father's money," Ricky blurted, his voice loud and belligerent, beyond his control. "I'm asking for mine. I put it in by myself, so I guess I can draw it out by myself."

Annie was disconcerted. She knew Ricky never did anything important without his father's assistance. His anger frightened her.

"You needn't think you can stand there and shout at me," she said shrilly. "I've a mind to call your father right now and tell him."

"You just keep away from that phone and give me my money," Ricky ordered. The harsh, tough voice that was coming out of his mouth sounded strange and frightening.

The annoyance in Annie's eyes gave way to a quick look of fear. She had read about the crazy things that boys did. And it was always the nice ones who suddenly went berserk.

"How much do you want?" Annie asked, taking care to keep back where he couldn't grab her.

Ricky blushed, ashamed of the way he had talked to old Annie. "All of it," he said in a subdued voice. "I have to buy something important."

"Well, don't just stand there," Annie said. Her fright over, she was her old snippy self again. "You know enough to make out a withdrawal slip. Hurry now. I want to have some time to finish my lunch."

It was a block away from the square on a side street, and it didn't look like the kind of garage you'd want to take a new car to. A big, unpainted frame building with a red gas pump in front, and rusted scraps of junk piled along the outside walls. In the weedy lot next to the garage, with a hand-lettered FOR SALE sign on the windshield, was the car.

It was a '39 Ford coupe, originally black, but now the rusty shade of an old top hat. It didn't matter that the fenders were battered and rusted through—they'd come off. And if the door on the driver's side had to be wired shut, that was all to the good. It wouldn't be so likely to fly open so he'd be thrown out if he happened to roll the car on a turn.

He opened the good door, letting out a rush of hot air that smelled of dust, old upholstery and metal. He felt the usual momentary disappointment that the gearshift lever was on the floor, not up under the wheel. But he comforted himself with the thought that the fancy sports cars like the Jags and the Nash Healeys had their gear boxes on the floor.

He slid under the wheel, sitting on loose and broken springs, staring forward through a windshield that was pitted and discolored from the ravages of weather.

He sat behind the wheel dreaming and planning until Merle Connor returned to the garage from lunch driving an ancient tow-truck. Merle saw Ricky in the coupe, and it being too hot to start work right away, he strolled over to the car to kid Ricky with a sales talk.

Merle was in his thirties, a dispirited man in baggy brown coveralls and a greasy red leather cap he wore winter and summer. He was always renting some old building or shack and starting up some kind of fix-it-service. He had been through lawnmowers and sewing machines and electrical work, and now he had a garage.

Merle leaned against the wired door of the coupe.

"Mighty good car here," Merle said, thumping the tinny door with his fist. "Just got her in, and she'll probably be sold this afternoon. Showroom condition. Still has that new smell."

The car had been sitting there for months.

"She's a nice one all right," Ricky agreed, patting the steering wheel.

Merle yawned. He hated to go back to work, but he was bored with the talk. They'd gone over the same ground a hundred times. "Kid," he said, tired of everything, "if you want this car so much why don't you buy it?"

"Maybe I will buy it," Ricky said.

Merle had heard that before. "When? The year 2000?"

"Maybe right now," Ricky said, afraid to listen to himself.

Merle straightened up. He caught the sound of money in Ricky's tone. "Your pa would skin you alive if you bought a car," Merle said. "You know that."

Ricky reached in his pocket and pulled out his money. He held the bills up in front of Merle's face. "Who you listening to?" Ricky demanded, his voice aggressive and shaky. "This, or what you think my father would say?"

Merle shot a quick look at the money. "That don't look like $65 to me," he said disinterestedly.

Ricky looked hurt. "I thought the price was fifty."

Merle chuckled in a way to indicate that Ricky was talking like a child. "Kid," he said, "you just don't know about car prices. They've gone up since the last time I talked to you. There's a big demand for good used cars now. A big demand. Matter of fact, $65 is pretty cheap for this car." An adult could have bought the car for $25, and he'd be glad to get rid of it, but these kids were different. When they got the fever for a particular car, they wanted it.

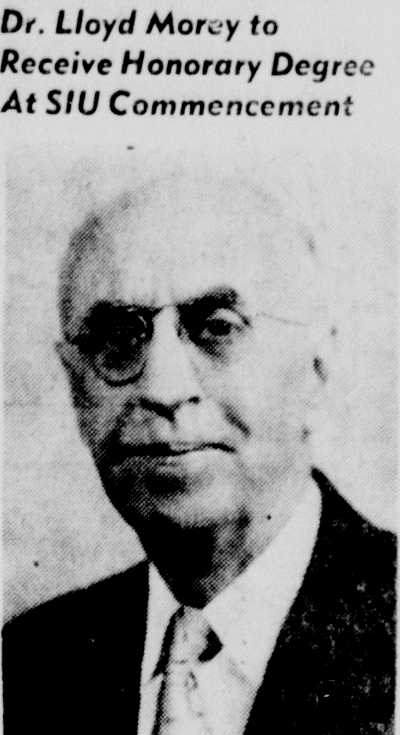

"Yeah," Merle said, turning his back on Ricky. "I turned down sixty for it this morning. The market's real good now. Real good." He turned again, suddenly, hoping to catch Ricky off guard, but Ricky made no attempt to conceal the hopelessness he felt. If he hadn't been sure he wanted the car, he was sure now. Now that somebody else would probably buy it.

"Fifty's all I got," Ricky said dully, looking at the money in his hand as though it had betrayed him. "Well, if it ain't enough, I guess it just ain't enough." He slid across the seat and got out of the car, his lower lip protruding.

Merle shook his head. These kids! No effort to bargain. No brains. He walked around the car to join Ricky. "Well, it's enough to buy her with, even if it ain't enough to buy her all," Merle said. "Of course, I hate to do business that way. All that extra trouble and book work, and forms to fill out."

Ricky looked at the coupe, thinking hard. "I'll pay $50 down and the rest a dollar a week."

Cokes, Palace, And Karnes Win Kiwanis Games

In games played Thursday in the Kiwanis leagues the Coca Colas nipped Walker's Cleaners, 6-4; Turner's Cafe was outslugged by the Palace Clothing nine, 21-12, and Karnes Hardware romped over Pankey's, 13-7.

Cokes vs. Walker's
Henshaw and King locked up in a pitching duel with Henshaw emerging victor as he allowed only two hits, both in the first, while Williams and Hatcher hit back-to-back singles for the losers. King allowed only four hits but the winning Cokes cashed in on six errors to tally six runs to the losing Walker's four. Ziegler, Bottomley, Crews and Parks hit the four singles.

Karnes vs. Pankey's
The hitting of Gary Aldridge and the clutch pitching of Zane Hefner were the main factors in the Karnes victory. Pankey's outthit Karnes, seven to six, but they couldn't push in runs that are the main factors in a ball game. Aldridge took batting honors for the winners with three hits. Kinser and Syers took hitting laurels for the losers with two base knocks apiece.

Palace vs. Turner's
The Palace Clothing team won hitting honors with 22 safeties and individual hitting laurels as Chuck Seten had a perfect day with five for five. Henshaw allowed the losers nine hits and 12 runs as he gained the victory. Kihlmire led the losers with three base hits.

Marciano is Unimpressive in Sparring Matches

GROSSINGER, N. Y. (AP) — Rocky Marciano is the ring's first perfect-record heavyweight champion, but at the peak of training today for his third title defense he had a sore nose and had caused considerable brow-lifting among observers because of unimpressive sparring performances.

Trainer Charley Gollman insisted, "His nose is okay. It just bled a little in the second round yesterday with Willie Wilson. Just a trickle of blood for the first time since Holland."

Goldman was referring to the nose bleed at Holland, Michigan, in April, 1953, that caused more than a month's postponement of his second title fight with Jersey Joe Walcott in Chicago. Rocky trained at Holland.

Although the nose was cauterized at that time to prevent future bleeding, Rocky has been careful to wear a headguard with protective cheek flaps that jut out past the nose and guard is from most punches.

Rocky rested today in accord with the schedule that brought him Thursday to his supposed peak of condition for next Thursday night's defense against ex-champ Ezzard Charles at Yankee Stadium. Thursday's nose bleed had nothing to do with today's rest.

What better indictment do you need of the chain systems' suppression of ballplayers than Spooks Jacobs' second base success with the Athletics after seven years of burial by Brooklyn? ... Lending more credence to Paul Richards' motion for an unrestricted draft.

Rookie Rudy Regalado has a long term contract coming up — with pretty Marcia Mittendorf, once President Eisenhower's campaign headquarters' secretary and the daughter of a Los Angeles radio producer.

When he was a Cleveland bench-warming bonus boy, Robert Avila warried off sestas in the dugout by learning to chew tobacco but discarded the chaw when he made the starting lineup. ... The American League hit leader was a pro soccer player at 14. ... Where would the Tribe be without the Spanish-speaking delegation of Avila, Eduardo (Mike) Garcia, Rudolfo Regalado, not to mention skipper Alfonso Lopez?

The basic humility of Rocky Marciano is no better revealed than in this question he popped at us in a tramp over the mountains.

Bobby Avila

at his Grossinger, N. Y., training camp: "Murray, you've seen me fight a lot. Tell me, what's my weakness?"

We asked Bob Golden, one of the champ's sparring partners, if he'd ever stung Rocky. "Couple of times," he answered. "I hit him in the body, and I could hear him grunt. 'Ooh.' It felt real good, but while I'm standing there enjoying it, he's hitting me back." Golden, an Akron boy, now fights out of Denver because his service discharge coincided with that city's hook-up to the co-axial cable, and his manager wanted him on the picture tubes. ... Viva TV.

Marciano would have been given the Ed Murrow Person-to-Person treatment months ago if manager Al Weill hadn't balked at the price. ... and only yielded recently because Rocky's been told he needs to project more before the general public.

Rocky, meeting Hank Bauer of the Yankees, whispered aside: "He looks more like a fighter than me." And in East St. Louis, Hank admits he was a promising street brawler "with a club in my right hand." Bauer hasn't had a recurrence of malaria, which felled him 23 times, since 1946. ... He calls Baltimore Bob Turley, another East St. Louis product, the fastest pitcher in his experience. ... and used to play on the same sandlot team with Bob's uncle Gene.

Johnny Podres is supposed to have more mound poise than any young pitcher in the last decade ... but speaking before an audience of more than three terrifies him. ... Have the three New York clubs ever had a better set of center fielders than Duke Snider, Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle ... and not one of them at his peak yet?

You can't beat Johnny Sain's twisting motion, a la Freddie Fitzsimmons, for holding a runner close to second base. ... Bucky Harris' insistence a year ago that Jim Busby change to an open hitting stride made a big league hitter of the fleet Texan. ... Dugout pundits rate Mike Garcia the easiest pitcher to get a good jump on.

Third-sacker Andy Carey is advanced by his fellow Yankees as the biggest viltles stoker in the majors. ... He puts away 10 eggs at a sitting. ... and saves money by eating at a steak house in the Bronx which offers the meal free to anyone who can digest its four-pound, $8.50 steak.

Between you'n' me, there's no excuse for the league president or the commissioner's office not ordering a complete replay of the Brooklyn-Milwaukee farce.

Three Yankee Regulars Out

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yankees went into their most important series of the year today minus the services of outfielders Gene Woodling and Enos Slaughter and third baseman Andy Carey.

When they face the first-place White Sox tonight they will have only four outfielders, Mickey Mantle, Hank Bauer, Irv Noren, and Bob Cerv.

Woodling suffered a chip fracture in the big toe of his right foot when he hit himself with a foul tip in batting practice Thursday.

Slaughter previously suffered a broken wrist and was placed on the disabled list for 30 days. Carey has an old fashioned "charley horse."

Giants Win Fourth Straight At Milwaukee, 1-0, to Tie Dodgers for First Place

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Lo those poor Indians, how they need those big bats of Al Rosen and Bobby Avila.
Since their two leading sluggers went out of the lineup with broken fingers, their replacements have been batting a collective 118. Small wonder then that Cleveland has skidded out of the lead to 1-1-2 games behind the whizzing White Sox. Avila was batting .381 to lead the American League when he sat down. Rosen was third in the league at .346.

Vic Wertz has gotten two singles in eight times at bat and Bill Glynn one single in 13 times at bat as they share Rosen's first base post. Sam Dente has one single in 11 at bats and Hank Majeski is 0 for 2 in their efforts to carry on for scrappy Avila.

Stone Pitches Victory
Thursday, rookie Dean Stone pitched an 8-4 victory for Washington over Cleveland ace Bob Lemon, who was also on the ailing list with a lame back.

Lemon issued seven walks before he was batted out in a three-run sixth. Washington made eight singles and six figured in the scoring. The Nats got the rest of their runs in a five tally third inning rally. Cleveland made only seven hits.

The White Sox were rained out at Philadelphia. The Yankees topped Detroit, 9-5. Mickey Mantle, Bobby Brown and Yogi Berra tagging Ralph Branca for homers, Baltimore won its first double-header of the season, 5-1 and 9-0, from Boston behind the pitching of Joe Coleman and Duane Pilette.

Giants Roar On
The Giants roared on in the National, topping the Braves, 1-0, in 10 innings for their fourth straight at Milwaukee on rookie Bill Taylor's first big league homer off loser Gene Conley. Brooklyn stayed in a first place tie with the Giants by defeating the Cardinals, 7-4. Cincinnati won its fourth straight and its third over punchless Pittsburgh, 6-0 and Philadelphia blanked Chicago, 6-0.

Ruben Gomez won his sixth game and his third shutout, scattering nine hits. A fine throw by Willie Mays doubled Hank Aaron at home in the seventh after a fly to center by Bill Bruton, preventing Conley from winning a shutout.

Dodgers Get Hits

The Dodgers made 13 hits, Billy Cox setting the pace with a double and two singles and driving in what proved to be the winning run off Vic Raschi. Russ Meyer with relief help from Clem Labine, won his seventh game.

Homers by Jim Greengrass and Gus Bell were big blows in Cincinnati's victory, an 11-hitter for lefty Fred Baczewski as Pittsburgh was shut out.

Steve Ridzik and Jom Konstanty each gave up four hits in the Philly shutout.
The Yankees treated Branca much the same as they used to in the World Series, touching him for eight of their 15 hits. Frank House homered for Detroit.

Coleman won his seventh for Baltimore, holding the Red Sox without a run until the ninth in a seven-hitter. Pilette came through with a five-hitter in the second game. Sam Mele homered for Baltimore in the opener. Clint Courtney hit a two-run homer in the second game.

Death-Defying Daredevil in Shrine Circus

Among the host of stars of the Tom Packs' Southern Illinois Shrine Circus, sponsored by Ainal Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and the Shrine Clubs of Southern Illinois, which will be in Harrisburg, June 16, will be a man, whose act is baffling and thrilling to a point where it defies classification.

The man is Captain Frank "Dynamite" Franks, tall, gray-haired veteran daredevil of middle age who, clad in white overalls and crash helmet, places himself in a black coffin and permits 13 sticks of dynamite to be detonated inside the casket with himself.

The explosion which follows is to put it mildly — very mildly — deafening.

How's such a thing possible? According to advance reports, the procedure is a closely guarded secret.

Says Captain Franks, "It's all in knowing how. If you ignite 13 sticks of dynamite with yourself inside a coffin, you'd disintegrate just like tap paper. It's all in knowing how."

flecting the views of many Republicans in Congress, hailed the address as a "strong appeal for action." He predicted the President will get the "great majority" of his requests—even the hotly contested farm and tax bills. The President will have a "tougher fight" to put over his housing bill, Martin said, "but I think he'll win it." A number of other Republicans made similar statements.

Rep. John W. McCormack (Mass), assistant House Democratic leader, said Mr. Eisenhower will be supported on "Democratic policies he took to his bosom" like unemployment compensation. But he said the farm bloc will oppose the farm program and he rapped the tax bill as favoring the rich. Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) confirmed this stand. Other Democrats expressed similar views.

Mr. Eisenhower promised that his administration will "keep everlastingly at the job of uprooting subversion" at home and push a defense program that is "streamlined, effective, and economical" and directed "in the longer range toward world disarmament."

"We must seek for all mankind a release from the deadening burden of armaments," he said.

The President also urged approval of a request by Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. for authority to use tapped telephone calls in federal wire-tap evidence in sabotage, espionage and national security cases and Brownell's proposal to grant immunity to reluctant witnesses who will "tell the truth" before "court, grand juries and congressional hearings."

Mr. Eisenhower flatly rejected the action of the House Agriculture Committee which voted 21 to 8 earlier this week for a one-year extension of present rigid high farm price supports.

Reds Seal Off French-Held Red River Delta

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—Communist forces virtually have sealed off the French-held Red River Delta, official sources said today.

The sources said first elements of Communist columns marching southeast from Dien Bien Phu have reached Than Hoa, 75 miles due south of Hanoi.

The bulk of Red units totalling several battalions from various regiments were reported only two or three days march behind.

The effect of the move to Than Hoa is to form a horseshoe around the Red River valley, with the open ends anchored on the sea.

Meanwhile, far to the west, French pilots in American-supplied planes blasted some of the 100,000 Communist regular troops and guerrillas in that portion of the Red River Delta.

A French High Command spokesman said the bombers rocked rebel bases in the northeast section of Indochina's great rice bowl, hitting hardest at stockpiles in Nghai Phu and Co Noi.

Developments affecting Indochina included:

1. French deputies already were speculating on who will succeed French Premier Joseph Laniel, whose government faces perhaps a fatal vote of confidence Saturday.

2. The British demanded the Communist bloc to show willingness to compromise on Indochina or abandon the Geneva peace talks completely.

3. In was learned in Washington that during recent Franco-American talks French spokesmen said France would be unable to continue fighting in Indochina much longer without allied intervention. Otherwise, the French said, they might be forced to accept unsatisfactory peace terms.

4. Informed sources in Washington said American military authorities believed Viet Nam, Indochina's largest state, will be lost unless the West decides quickly to intervene.

Reds to Reply Tuesday To U. S. Request for Release of 83 Americans

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The Chinese Communists have promised to reply Tuesday to a United States request for the release of 83 Americans held in Red China.

The U. S. formally asked that the Americans, including 34 jailed civilians and 29 servicemen, be allowed to return home.

An official statement by the Chinese Reds after the second meeting on the subject Thursday said the American list will be examined and a reply given at the third meeting of representatives of the two countries scheduled for next Tuesday.

Gov. Thomas Stanley of Virginia announced this finding after a closed-door session Thursday with governors or other delegates from 15 states who met to discuss the Supreme Court ruling.
